

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Dues for the Hoo-Hoo year ending September 9, 1902, became due and payable at the close of the Norfolk Annual Meeting.

With a view of saving expense in collection of these dues, the formal "First Notice of Dues" will not be sent out this year until later, thereby giving every one who will an opportunity to pay his dues without a notice.

Will you be one of 2,000 men to send in your dues in response to this notice and thereby enable us to save $40.00 in cash, beside a vast amount of work? Do this for the good of Hoo-Hoo.

See blank for remittance below, and remember that any kind of money or bankable paper goes. We pay no exchange on checks. Don't be ashamed to write a check for 99 cents.

PAY NOW AND GET IT OFF YOUR MIND.

Fraternaly,

The Vicegerents.

The following are the Vicegerents of Hoo-Hoo, to whom all inquiries touching Concatenations should be addressed. These men are appointed to look after the interests of the Order in their respective territories. To this end, everything affecting the interests of the Order should be reported to them, and they should have the hearty support and co-operation of every member:

The New Snark.

Through the immense volume of correspondence received at this office a great deal of information is picked up regarding the personal character and the mental caliber of various members of Hoo-Hoo. "Reading between the lines" is an accomplishment in which long practice results in a degree of perfection that is sometimes a real help in a business way, in addition to constituting an unfailing source of interest. It is not surprising, therefore, that the Scrivenoter's entire office force some time ago became impressed with the fact that Mr. A. H. Weir is a man of unusual ability. As one of them expressed it while Mr. Weir was Senior Hoo-Hoo: "He has a judicial mind; he sees both sides of a subject." We believe that his record as Snark of the Universe will bear this out, and we venture the prediction that during his administration Hoo-Hoo will grow rapidly, both in numbers and in the character of its membership.

The "American Lumberman" of recent date has the following to say of the new Snark:

"Among the men who not only are successful in their chosen field, but whose abilities and character are recognized generally through the trade, is Austin Harris Weir, of Lincoln, Neb. Last week he was elected head of the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo at the annual convention of that Order in Norfolk, Va., which sufficiently indicates that he is a man of no small caliber.

"In speaking of his past, Mr. Weir facetiously says that he is a naturalized foreigner, having been born in New Jersey. That event occurred in 1845; but when he was about two years old, his parents moved to Moline, Ill.; so his earliest recollections are of the 'Sucker State,' and he is to all intents and purposes a Westerner. As a boy, he worked in a sawmill and planing mill at Moline, learning there the rudiments of the lumber business. When about eighteen years of age, while preparing for the sophomore class at the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, and endeavoring to skip the work of the freshman year, his health became poor and he went to Colorado and roughed it for a year. This so agreed with him that he felt able to respond to the call for troops and enlisted in the infantry arm of the Colorado Volunteers; but after the first year he served in the cavalry, continuing there until the end of the war.

After the war he went to Chicago and endeavored to pick up his studies again, but found that he had gotten too far away from them, and so he went into the grocery business. In a year or two he went back to Colorado and took an interest in a small sawmill upon the "Divide" between Denver and Colorado Springs. At that time there was considerable timber of a coarse quality in that vicinity, though now it has been almost entirely cut away, and the sawmills have been moved back into the mountains, from whence even yet comes the larger part of the coarse lumber used in Central and Southern Colorado. That State is usually considered treeless, and so perhaps it is in comparison with some other States, but what timber grew there had much to do in making possible its early development.

"When the timber there gave out, Mr. Weir went back to Chicago, and was again for several years in the grocery business, although it was never a congenial one.

"In the meantime S. A. Brown, of Chicago, and associates had started a line of yards in Kansas. G. B. Shaw, one of the men in interest and until recently president of the Metropolitan National Bank, in Chicago, a short time ago amalgamated with another, was a chum of Mr. Weir, and offered him the charge of one of the Kansas yards, which he accepted. He continued in that position three years, and in 1882 he went to Nebraska and located in Lincoln, where he has been ever since.

"Thus Mr. Weir was associated with one of the most remarkable developments ever seen in the lumber trade, in which S. A. Brown & Co. and the Chicago Lumber Company were leaders. These and some other concerns of the same character, though of less importance, followed the railroads in the development of the West, unloading their lumber from the first trains that reached new town sites and dotting the prairies and plains with the lumber yards from which were built the houses that sheltered the hundreds of thousands of people that within a decade went into that great country.

"After a few years, S. A. Brown & Co. sold their interests to the Badger Lumber Company, of Kansas City, Mo., with which Mr. Weir has been since that time. This transfer of ownership was another stage in the lumber development of the West. It was part of the general transfer of the lumber business from the hands of those located at a distance to those identified with the country. Now the line yards of Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, etc., are almost exclusively owned by men located in the natural trade centers of, or for, those States.

"The Lincoln yard of the Badger Lumber Company is an important business enterprise, holding a large volume of trade and requiring for its management business qualifications of no small order.

"Mr. Weir has had something of a political career. He has always been a Republican in principle, but not one of the sort of party men who will stick by their party when it degenerates into a plundering ring. In 1881 he was nominated by the fusionists for mayor of Lincoln against as corrupt a nest of politicians, Mr. Weir believes, as ever held power in any city. Getting wind of the situation, the Republican gangsters came to him and offered him the nomination. He replied that he could accept it only on one condition—that it came to him without any reservation of any sort. This was not satisfactory, as a scheme was on foot to capture the public waterworks for a private corporation, with other important franchise steals, and his collusion and assistance in these affairs was desired. He was then told that a special effort would be made to defeat him if he ran on another ticket. Nevertheless, he ran, and was elected over a normal Republican majority of 2,000, and the things he did to the rascals are too many to be told here. Mr. Weir was elected mayor a second time, serving four years in all. He declined a third nomination, and the fusionist candidate, making his campaign on national issues instead of devoting himself to local affairs, repelled the Republicans who had voted for Mr. Weir, and he was defeated.

"Mr. Weir was also once a candidate for Congress in the First District of Nebraska against the regular Republican nominee, but could not entirely overcome the heavy Republican majority in that district, although he materially reduced it and carried several counties. He was defeated for the fusionist nomination for Governor of Nebraska in the year that the successful candidate, Poynter, carried the election. If the fusionists hold their strength in Nebraska, it is not improbable that Mr. Weir may yet be Governor of that State. Indeed, when he took his seat as Snark at the convention at Norfolk, the remark was made to the convention: 'Gentlemen, you have elected the future Governor of Nebraska as your Snark.'

"Just a word about Mr. Weir's Hoo-Hoo affiliation will be apropos. He joined the Order in December, 1894. From the first he was recognized as one of its leading members in Nebraska, and served a term as Vicegerent for that State. In 1900 he was made Senior Hoo-Hoo upon the Supreme Nine, and now he has been advanced to the headship of the Order, whose interests should be promoted under his guidance."

Comments on Concatenations.

The brethren out in the State of Washington, seeing their inability to cross the continent and be present at the Annual Meeting at Norfolk, Va., conceived the happy idea of holding an Annual Meeting of their own. The town of Everett was the place selected, and the following account of the affair from the "West Coast and Puget Sound Lumberman," Brother Frank B. Cole's paper, indicates that the proceedings were most interesting:

"The concatenation held in Everett, Wash., on September 9, 1901, will be put down in the annals of Hoo-Hooism as one of the great events in its history. Old men who failed to attend it missed the opportunity to restore their youth; young men, to grow wise. The attendance was large, but not as large as the enthusiasm. The candidates were ripe for harvest. Some of them courted trouble, and got it. Owing to the care of the Torture Committee, no one was killed. Hereafter accident policies will be carried on the candidates at the expense of the concatenation.

"Tom Claffey gave a speech, and out of regard for his feelings everybody appeared to listen. E. Clark Evans told a story that he had heard. He also told one that was made up, which is not very unusual. Frank Lee Zimmerman, of Portland, Ore., arose to his feet and talked without a rest. He bore testimony for the good that Hoo-Hoo did him. James Bell wanted to sing, but he was refused space; so he contented himself with talking. He also satisfied the audience. A. B. Calder, Vicegerent Snark, also sheik of Canadian Pacific, passed out into obscurity, taking with him into exile the good wishes and kindly remembrances of Hoo-Hoo for the good year's work he had done for the Order. In retiring, he stated that he would recommend Victor H. Beckman to the Supreme Nine for the position of Vicegerent Snark for the ensuing year. This was heartily indorsed by the members present.

"The event was marked with good feeling full of memories of the past year of Hoo-Hoo and with many remembrances of those who had passed out of life to mingle no more in concatenations. W. J. Morgan, whose untimely death occurred a few weeks ago, was remembered by a toast drunk to him in silence.

"A resolution was offered and enthusiastically passed which shows how Hoo-Hoo had arrayed itself against anarchy and its violence. The resolution reads as follows:

"Resolved, That we, Hoo-Hoo, in concatenation assembled, in the city of Everett, on September 9, 1901, do protest against permitting any society to organize and grow in this country the end and aim of which is to change the forms of our government by murder or violence, and that we demand of all our lawgivers that they pass such laws as will forever stamp out the anarchist and his theories."

"A splendid poem was read, which was written for the occasion by Col. George H. Emerson, of Hoquiam. Harry J. Miller recited a poem in a voice that appealed to the digestion.

"About 2 o'clock the lights were turned out, and Hoo-Hoo wandered to their different berths and beds."

The following members were present at this Western Annual: James A. Clock, Portland, Ore.; F. L. Zimmerman, Portland, Ore.; William H. Braden, Portland, Ore.; A. B. Calder, Tacoma, Wash.; J. W. Draper, Tacoma, Wash.; Frank B. Cole, Tacoma, Wash.; W. M. Morrison, Tacoma, Wash.; K. J. Burns, Tacoma, Wash.; H. J. Miller, Chehalis, Wash.; E. E. Lytle, Bothell, Wash.; A. Calthness, Everett, Wash.; C. F. Groenke, Everett, Wash.; Allen Daniel, Everett, Wash.; J. M. Hall, Everett, Wash.; J. E. Stone, Everett, Wash.; Ed. Stevers, Everett, Wash.; S. E. Wharton, Everett, Wash.; F. W. Sumner, Everett, Wash.; James E. Bell, Everett, Wash.; H. A. Uphus, Everett, Wash.; J. C. Fields, Everett, Wash.; Thomas Robinson, Everett, Wash.; Thomas McCaffery, Everett, Wash.; O. O. Calderhead, Seattle, Wash.; T. H. Claffey, Seattle, Wash.; F. M. Duggan, Seattle, Wash.; F. W. Graham, Seattle, Wash.; W. J. Corbin, Seattle, Wash.; J. S. Brace, Seattle, Wash.; A. C. Pates, Seattle, Wash.; L. V. Druce, Seattle, Wash.; R. T. Bretz, Seattle, Wash.; C. A. Dean, Seattle, Wash.; R. J. Little, Seattle, Wash.; L. E. Snell, Seattle, Wash.; C. Welton, Seattle, Wash.; T. M. Shields, Seattle, Wash.; F. L. Mears, Seat-and these three men will cooperate to make this a record-breaking year.

The following account of a very successful concatenation at New Orleans, La., on October 18, appeared in the last issue of the "Southern Lumberman." In the absence of the Vicegerent, Brother Sam. K. Cowan was the man actively in charge of arrangements, and he was ably assisted by the local members and some distinguished visitors. Mr. Cowan deserves great credit for the manner in which he handled the business details of this concatenation, and, as a reward of merit, he will probably be asked to do the same thing again some time. After finishing up everything else, he topped off the whole matter by writing this sprightly account of the affair for the "Lumberman":

"One of the most enjoyable concatenations ever held in New Orleans followed the organization of the Lumbermen's Association of the South. It was held in the banquet hall tle, Wash.; E. S. Follmer, Seattle, Wash.; R. B. Tolman, Seattle, Wash.; E. C. Evans, Seattle, Wash.; V. H. Beckman, Seattle, Wash.

Vicegerent B. F. Orr started the ball to rolling in the Southwest at a very successful concatenation held at Amarillo, Texas, on October 18. There was a class of thirteen kittens, a very lucky number for Hoo-Hoo, and all other signs and portents indicate that Texas will uphold the very high standard set last year. It will be remembered that when the roll was called at the Annual, the "Lone Star State" showed up with 105 initiates. Texas now has two hustling Vicegerents, besides the Supreme Senior Hoo-Hoo, of the St. Charles Hotel. There was mirth in the gardens, and the dwellers in the hotel wondered at the great and strange sounds they heard.

"The kittens whose eyes were opened that night were: Robert H. Tate, commercial agent of the New Orleans and Northeastern Railroad, New Orleans, La.; O. S. Leeh, assistant superintendent of the Queen and Crescent Lumber Company, Nicholson, Miss.; Harry B. Moore, manager of the sales department, Queen and Crescent Lumber Company; Earl J. Warren, superintendent of the Queen and Crescent Lumber Company; H. T. Moore, Queen and Crescent Lumber Company; D. M. Watson and J. L. France, 'Daily Picayune,' New Orleans, La.; J. W. Callahan, Callahan Manufacturing Company, Washington, La.; Frank H. Bryan, traveling representatives of the New Orleans 'Lumber Trade Journal'; John B. Mendenhall, of More-

Jones Brass and Metal Company, St. Louis, Mo.; Walter B. Schwartz, Schwartz Foundry Company, New Orleans, La.; Otho G. Yeamans, of E. C. Atkins & Co., Memphis, Tenn.

"The officials at the concatenation were: Snark, W. E. Barns; Senior Hoo-Hoo, John E. Williams; Junior Hoo-Hoo, John S. Bonner; Hojum, W. S. Phillips; Scrivenoter, S. K. Cowan; Jabberwock, E. A. Donnelly; Custocatian, N. M. Leach; Arcanoper, F. M. Smith; Gurdon, H. B. Byrne.

"Sparks From the Fur of the Great Black Cat.

"J. W. Callahan, of the Callahan Manufacturing Company, wore a pair of overalls to the concatenation, expecting to have to run an engine. He did.

"It is now the proper thing to congratulate E. A. Donnelly, of J. A. Fay & Egan Company, upon being the 'best Jabberwock on earth.' Within twenty-four hours he was congratulated 1,299 times. He blames Shaw.

"E. E. Shaw, C. T. Patterson Company's new man, had been in the South only two days, but on every hand was heard the question: 'Where is Shaw?' He is a good mixer. Reference is given to 'Mr. Sparks, of Texas.'

"Walter Schwartz, of the Schwartz Foundry Company, now talks learnedly upon gold digging in Alaska. He has made one 'trip to the Klondike.'

"S. L. Benz, general manager of the Queen and Crescent Lumber Company, was one of the most popular young men at the meeting. He is recognized as a lumberman of exceptional ability.

"J. B. Mendenhall, of More-Jones Brass and Metal Company, was 'mine host' in Room 314, next to headquarters. When a man was missing, you could find him in 314.

"The Junior work of John Bonner, of Houston, Texas, was worthy of high praise. His originality and wit assured success to the concatenation. The candidates knew they had been to the 'garden on the left.'

"A little surprise had been arranged for J. R. Pratt, of the Ten-mile Lumber Company, but he was called home before the concatenation.

"Mr. William H. Louieell, of the Bear Creek Mill Company, Manatee, Ala., was to have been a kitten, but he was also called away on business.

"Cad. Beale, of the National Dry Kiln Company, was easily the best dressed man at the meeting. There was a rumor to the effect that there was a romance attached to the flower he wore.

"Ask Otho Yeamans, of E. C. Atkins & Co., how many one-cent pieces there are in $10.98.

"Harry Hart, of the S. A. Woods Machine Company, was quiet, but he was 'there' all the time.

"A high compliment was paid Dudley Watson, of the New Orleans 'Picayune.' He made such a fine report of the meeting that a written request was made the city editor of that journal that Mr. Watson join the Order. The request was handsomely illustrated by Mr. W. S. Phillips, with black cats bowing before the journalistic altar, and it was presented by a committee of nine. The paper made a graceful response, and Mr. Watson was initiated.

"Manager Woods, of the St. Charles Hotel, ingratiated himself into the favor of all at the meeting by the many courtesies he extended. He gave his banquet hall for the concatenation, and never kicked after it was all over.

"In the serious work of the convention Carl F. Drake, of Austin, Texas, was the moving spirit. It was a fitting compliment to him that he should have been chosen the president of the new association. He did not seek the place—in fact, he wanted another to have it; but at the convention he showed himself to be a worker, and all felt that things should be left in his hands.

"Mr. Harlow proved such a competent secretary and had association work so at his finger tips that he was chosen as the vice-president.

"Mr. Allen showed experience as a presiding officer, and there was never a hitch at any time. In the hands of Mr. Drake, Mr. Harlow, and Mr. Allen, the objects for which the association was founded should be carried to a successful culmination.

"Messrs. John E. Williams, W. C. Wright, and Frank Bryan, of the New Orleans 'Lumber Trade Journal,' were hosts to all, and rendered many valuable services to the success of the meeting."

Notes and Comments.

The "Arkansas Democrat" has a good word to say of that much-maligned class, the traveling men:

"The Kansas preacher who spoke of traveling men as 'resembling Mormons because they had wives in every city they visited' showed an ignorance and prejudice unworthy of his calling. The drummer has been slandered in regard to his social connections. True, there may be a few representatives of the profession who are inclined to play a fast game, but the great majority have as high a regard for moral precepts as any class of men in the world. Ignorant persons sometimes mistake a frank, genial manner for a disposition to be 'fresh.' The average drummer is a generous-hearted, wide-awake, progressive fellow. He stops at hotels where the chief interest of landlords and servants is the amount he pays for his fare, and deals with men who often greet him with scant courtesy. He rides on freight trains, bunks on rough seats with his overcoat for a pillow, and drops off at small stations in the darkness of the night to accept with a cheerful air such lodging and fare as the town may afford. No matter how dearly he may love the comforts of home or how he longs for the companionship of a real friend, his feelings must be put aside for the stern realities of his profession, and through it all he must look happy and cheerful. He must maintain an air that betokens success and contentment. It is no wonder that in his loneliness he sometimes feels prone to ignore conventionalities and seek social acquaintances."

There is a whole lot of truth in what the Arkansas editor says. The traveling man is often cruelly misunderstood. He is accused of being fast, when frequently he is as slow as cold molasses. A man is not necessarily trying to make a mash every time he squints at a girl; he may be near-sighted. Besides, a girl has no business to jump to a conclusion too quick; she needn't imagine she smells orange blossoms every time a man asks to walk home with her from prayer meeting. On the other hand, no sane person expects a good-looking traveling man to wear a blind bridle or to deliberately shut his eyes at the grand opera if the management sees fit to introduce an innovation in the way of a ballet dancer. A man who would look the other way on such an occasion would lay himself liable to be called a "sissy man," and his firm might very naturally conclude that he could not see an order unless it was hung in his face. The popular conception of a traveling man is a gay and festive individual sitting in a parlor car and ogling at a golden-haired maiden. In reality, he is often a forlorn creature whose wife has just written him that the rent is due and to send check p. d. q. He does not always ride on the Pullman; more often he piles into a dusty day coach full of women who go traveling about with babies and handboxes and bird cages, and the "kids" climb up the back of the seat and drop peanuts down his coat collar. Patience and perseverance and long-suffering characterize the traveling man; and if he can stay on the road and keep straight for three years at a stretch, the chances are that some day he will be at the head of the firm.

Here are a few incongruous remarks from Brother Frank B. Cole, editor of the "West Coast and Puget Sound Lumberman":

"Before another issue of this paper goes out another annual concatenation will have been held, another year of Hoo-Hoo checked off the roll of time. It is a pity that so much space comes between those who make up the membership of this unique Order. There are but few Hoo-Hoo who would not go to Norfolk if they could, but there will be only a few who will go, and that's the pity of it. The ties that bind are hard to keep fast unless we look occasionally in a brother's face. There is something peculiar in this Order. All Hoo-Hoo know how lightly the bond bears that holds them together. SHH, the sight of the button always attracts the eye, and even when worn by a stranger it brings a fraternal glow to the heart. And the folly of it all! That is the mystery of the hold it has. It will not do to take Hoo-Hoo too seriously, and yet there are serious sides to it that must be looked after, or it will go down and be forgotten; as is the bulder of the Sphinx that rests in the sands of Egypt, where the Great Black Cat came first to earth."

Brother Cole might have gone further and said more. We should be glad to have him, or any other good Hoo-Hoo, suggest ways and means for making more prominent the "serious side" of our unique Order, without conflicting with its mission of infusing into the prosiness of life that element of good-natured fun that acts as an antiseptic and keeps us all from souring. It is easy enough to point out that a thing is not just right, but it is quite another matter to indicate how it could be improved. "The Bulletin" will be glad to publish the opinions of any members who may have views along the line of what Hoo-Hoo needs.

From Buffalo comes this joyful ebullition:

"On September 27 my wife presented me with a girl baby. We are very pleased over the event. Be sure to come to see us next time you are East. NO. 7343."

Our congratulations are tendered this happy Hoo-Hoo, and also the little daughter; having been born a girl, she will never have to marry one, which is said to be the chief advantage in being a woman.

Sometimes a letter is received at this office the contents of which are truly saddening. No. 7798 writes that he has recently suffered a painful accident, resulting in the loss of his leg. Our deepest sympathy is extended this unfortunate brother.

We have received a number of communications similar to the following:

"I am pleased to note the election of my old friend, A. H. Weir, to the office of Snark. I used to campaign with him in Kansas, and know him to be one of the 'true blues.' W. E. HALL (No. 6374)."

Inclosed please find my check for dues. I have carefully read everything in the last "Bulletin," and it has awakened my lost enthusiasm in Hoo-Hoo. I had thought it hardly worth my while to keep up my dues, as I had failed to see in the few concatenations that I have attended where there was any good to any one in it, either socially or financially; but I believe that with the higher standard that has been advocated at Norfolk we can go forward and accomplish good to each other and make our Order what it should be. I hope the time is not far distant when only those who have money invested in the lumber business can be eligible for membership. As was said at Norfolk, "employers do not like to be in a position where they are at the mercy of their employees."

Hoping for better things in the future, and Health, Happiness, and Long Life to Hoo-Hoo, I remain, Yours truly, NO. 4264.

Granite, O. T.—Mr. J. H. Baird, Nashville, Tenn.: One of the sights in the new country was noticed by a party of lumber dealers passing through Lone Wolf, Kiowa County. On a pile of two-quarter lumber, containing 999 feet, the sole stock of a dealer from Arkansas, rested a sign, "Lumber Yard." This was closely guarded by four forlorn fellows, the color of Hoo-Hoo darkness, with tails properly curled. This gathering was an accident, of course, but furnished much amusement for the party on the train.

Yours fraternally, NO. 4872.

The following from Brother Charles H. Evans explains itself:

"Columbia, S. C., October 21, 1901.—Mr. J. H. Baird, Scrivenoter, Nashville, Tenn.—Dear Sir: I call attention to the letter from the Charleston Exposition people, which I would be very glad to have you print in the next issue of 'The Bulletin' in very large letters and in a conspicuous place, as we wish to keep this fact impressed upon the various members of our Order so that they will not forget the date and will make no previous engagement. We also wish to impress this date upon the members of the Supreme Nine who were elected at Norfolk, as they expressed a willingness to go almost anywhere, regardless of business pressure, and we want them to be in Charleston on March 29, 1902. We will hold a concatenation in Charleston on November 14, 1901, in order to secure a good working delegation down there.

"I have just received a copy of 'The Bulletin,' and wish to congratulate you upon the manner and style in which you have gotten it up.

"With kind regards, Fraternally yours,
"CHARLES H. EVANS,
"Vicegerent Snark for South Carolina."

The last issue of "The Bulletin" contained on the back cover page a notice of dues for 1902, which became payable immediately after the Annual Meeting. It was printed in "The Bulletin" with a view to reducing the number of men to whom the formal "first notice" of dues would have to be sent, and thereby saving postage, etc. A large number of remittances have been received in response to this notice in the paper, but there are many who have not yet paid. We trust they will do so promptly.

The Snark of the Universe is a very busy man these days. The work of appointing the Vicegerents is going forward as rapidly as possible, and the list will be completed soon. A great many recommendations have been received, and all are being given careful consideration.

The Charleston Exposition.

March 29, 1902, has been set apart as Hoo-Hoo Day at the Charleston Exposition, as per this letter from the management:

"Charleston, S. C., October 14, 1901.—Mr. Charles H. Evans, Vicegerent Snark for South Carolina, Columbia, S. C.—My Dear Sir: Your letter of October 4, addressed to Director General Averill, has been referred to me. We are very glad indeed to know that we shall have a concatenation of the Hoo-Hoo in Charleston during the Exposition, and have set apart March 29 as 'Hoo-Hoo Day' at the Exposition. I trust that we shall have a very large gathering here of your noble Order. Yours very truly,

"J. C. HEMPHILL,
"Manager Department of Promotion and Publicity."

Obituary.

Brother L. H. Fillmore (No. 3262), of Joplin, Mo., died on August 25, after a lingering illness, at his home, in Joplin.

Lavias Hartson Fillmore was born in 1846 in Dupage County, Ill. At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted in Company C, One Hundred and Fifty-fourth Illinois, and afterwards in the One Hundred and Thirty-fifth Illinois. He was mustered out at Champaign, and in 1867 he settled near Olathe, Kan., on a farm in the Black Bob Reserve. Remaining on the farm until 1878, Mr. Fillmore removed to Kansas City, where he engaged in the business of contracting and building. Later he disposed of his business in Kansas City and came to Joplin to assist his brother, Judge L. A. Fillmore, in carrying on the partnership business in this place. The deceased was a member of the G. A. R. Post of Kansas City.

Mr. Fillmore commanded the respect and esteem of all classes of business men. His funeral was very largely attended, and the floral offerings were especially fine. The G. A. R. Post attended in a body. The members of the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo turned out from all parts of the country. The honorary pallbearers were G. A. R.'s; the active pallbearers were the following Hoo-Hoo: L. F. Miller, of the L. F. Miller Lumber Company; W. A. Sandford, of the Sandford Brothers Mercantile Company; R. C. Walsh, of the Walsh-Thompson Lumber Company; W. J. Ward, of the R. J. Hurlley Lumber Company; W. A. Wheatley, of the Stewart Brothers Lumber Company; and J. H. Foresman, traveling auditor for the Long-Bell Lumber Company.

Brother Arthur W. Newton (No. 3996) died at his home, in Colorado Springs, Col., on August 2, 1901.

The local paper had the following account of the sad event:

"Arthur W. Newton died to-day at 12 o'clock at his residence, 220 East Monument street, after an illness of but five days. He arrived home on Saturday from a brief vacation spent in Texas with his father, Ed. Newton, at Sour Lake, near Beaumont, in apparently perfect health; but the next day he was taken suddenly ill, and when Dr. Lawrence was called, his temperature was above 104. The disease, which was typhoid fever, contracted in Texas, had already made great headway, and at no time since the first was there much encouragement for his recovery.

"Mr. Newton was one of the highly-respected young men of the community, having lived here since childhood. He was connected with the Newton Lumber Company, having been with the concern for years. The Newton Lumber Company is controlled by the Newtons.

"The deceased was twenty-eight years of age, and in 1896 became a member of the Masonic order, joining El Paso Lodge, No. 13. During the six years of his membership he had been honored by one office after another until last year, when he reached the pinnacle, being elected Master. In this capacity and in all others he served in a most satisfactory manner; and it can be said that in all his official connection with the lodge, none have served it better. When he was installed as Master in December, 1899, he requested that if he should be taken away during his term of office the burial services should be conducted by the order. A wife and child four years of age are left to mourn their loss, besides a host of friends, who will equally grieve and whose sympathy is with the family at this time."

Brother J. C. Pulse (No. 6035) died at Paragould, Ark., on October 1.

James Cassius Pulse was born in Greenburg, Ind., on April 29, 1853. During his three years' residence in Paragould he represented different lumber firms, and for the past three months was local lumber inspector for Gage & Purcell, of Cincinnati. Mr. Pulse was universally popular, and his untimely death was deeply mourned.

A Concatenation at Savannah.

Vicegerent Geo. V. Denny will hold a concatenation at Savannah, Ga., November 12, and from the following clipping from the local paper we judge that the affair will be one of those old fashioned, rousing good meetings for which Georgia is noted:

If Tuesday, Nov. 12, is not made "Lumberman's day" or "Hoo-Hoo day" at the State Fair it will be the day of the lumbermen and the Hoo-Hoo in the city of Savannah at any rate. Yesterday afternoon, in the office of Mr. W. B. Stillwell, of the Southern Pine Company, the initial steps were taken toward a banquet in Savannah on the evening of Nov. 12, probably at the De Soto hotel.

On that date the Georgia Sawmill Association will hold its monthly meeting for November in Savannah. It was decided at the October meeting at Tifton to meet here on Nov. 12, as the State Fair will be in progress at that time and there will be varied attractions for lumbermen and others during that week.

As soon as it was found that the sawmill men were coming to Savannah the members of the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo, that black cat organization in which so many lumbermen hold membership, decided upon a concatenation for the same date of the lumbermen meeting, with a banquet at night. Mr. Geo. W. Denny, the new South Georgia Vicegerent Snark of Hoo-Hoo, interested himself in the matter yesterday afternoon, a meeting was held, and the first arrangements perfected.

Mr. George W. Perkins, President of the Georgia Lumber Company, presided at the meeting yesterday, and among the lumbermen and Hoo-Hoo present were Messrs. W. B. Stillwell, J. J. McDonough, George W. Denny, B. B. Neal and T. J. Davis.

It was decided to appoint a local committee, of which Mr. J. J. Kirby is chairman, with the following members: Messrs. George W. Denny, Harvey Granger, C. B. Stillwell, T. J. Davis and B. B. Neal. This committee will complete the arrangements for the Hoo-Hoo banquet and concatenation.

The Georgia Sawmill Association is the biggest organization in the State among the lumbermen. Mr. W. H. Tift, of Tifton, is its President; Mr. W. B. Stillwell, of Savannah, Vice President, and Mr. F. E. Waymer, of Tifton, Secretary. The monthly meetings are for business only, and the recreation usually comes at the Hoo-Hoo banquets, as there is a concatenation almost every time there is a meeting of the association.

It will be observed that the unknown list in this issue is unusually long, and it is hoped that every good Hoo-Hoo will read it and write this office if he knows the address of any of these lost brothers. Sometimes a man whose name appears on this list writes an indignant letter saying he is not unknown, and in some cases he gives the very same address from which his mail has been returned marked "unclaimed." Doubtless in such cases the postmaster is to blame. At any rate we are doing all we can to keep the mailing list straight.

The Ladies' Pin.

The cut herewith shows the Hoo-Hoo Ladies Pin. We have yet to see a lady, old or young, who did not want one of these pins the minute she saw it. To have these pins in the hands of pretty women—and a good Hoo-Hoo knows no other sort—is the best possible advertisement for the Order. Every Hoo-Hoo ought to buy one of these pins, have his number engraved on it, and give it to some good woman. Remit $1.50 to the Scrivenoter, and one of these pins duly engraved will be sent by registered mail to any address. It is one of the nicest presents imaginable for a man's sweetheart. Only members in good standing can purchase.
